SACRED SOUND SISTER

MEET

BRACKEN

My relationship with sound began early, shaped by an upbringing that valued ritual, deep listening, and connection. From a young age, I experienced sound not simply as something we hear, but as a subtle and powerful tool for calm, reflection, and emotional well-being. Years of study deepened my understanding of the science of sound as a form of technology, frequencies that speak to the nervous system, entrain brainwaves, soften fascia, and gently guide the body out of fight, flight, and freeze and into states of restoration, relaxation, and creativity.

In 2015, during my own journey with stress, I experienced firsthand the calming effects of sound. This became a turning point, leading me to train as a certified Sound Healing Practitioner and commit to sharing sound as an accessible, restorative practice. Today, I create intentional sound experiences that feel grounding and welcoming, especially for those new to sound healing. Sessions weave voice, instruments, guided meditation, and simple movement and breath, often in collaboration with practitioners across wellbeing, psychology, philosophy, and the arts, to create inclusive, thoughtfully held, and deeply restorative spaces.

SACRED SOUND SISTER

ABOUT US?

Sacred Sound Sister was created by Bracken Roots in response to the growing need for deeper rest, connection, and nervous system support in modern life. Inspired by her family's relationship with music and the voice, her mother's teachings, and the experience of singing alongside her sisters, the practice is rooted in trust, collaboration, and shared care.

At its heart, Sacred Sound Sister is a sound based wellbeing practice that supports relaxation, self-awareness, and restoration through vibration, voice, and intentional presence. Guided by the symbolism of the ancient triquetra, Sacred Sound Sister reflects the interconnectedness of mind, body, and spirit, and how sound can gently bring awareness to past experiences, the present moment, and future intentions.

Thoughtfully structured sessions weave sound and instruments such as gongs, crystal singing bowls, flute, rattles, and chimes. Guided by principles of softness, receptivity, and rest, Sacred Sound Sister exists to offer a calm, inclusive space where sound becomes the guide, and rest becomes the medicine.
